A GOOD PURCHASE.

There has never been a Christmas quite like that of 1914 in the history of the world. With the greater part of Europe at war, war geographically so comprehensive as to include Kiaochow and the Falkland Islands, a most substantial demand has been made upon America to assist the non-combatants of the belligerent countries in securing the very necessities of life.

And with pardonable pride we must say that America has responded nobly.

Meanwhile there are our own charities that require as much, if not more than in former years. And these domestic demands must stand first, with our European aims regarded in the nature of a charitable luxury. One of the most deserving of our local charities is the Anti-Tuberculosis League, which is the city's standing army to wage war against the white plague.

The League naturally requires money for its benevolent militarism. It is issuing its Red Cross seals, which have been its medium for raising money for several years. Buy them. Economically they are your contribution toward the prevention of disease among your fellow citizens, even among the members of your family. Charitably they are the symbol of your participation in the alleviation of suffering, surely a manifestation of true Christmas spirit. —Times-Star.

PRESIDENTIAL ELECTION OF 1916

It Is Certain To Be Won By The Republican Party On The Issue of Protection.

(San Francisco Chronicle.)

For many years the one political tenet which has distinguished the Republican party from all other political organizations is the doctrine of the protection of home industries by a protective tariff.

And that is the one distinguishing tenet yet.

And by protection has always been understood sufficient protection to protect. And not merely to protect here and there an industry, but to assure a decided preponderance in the domestic markets for all commodities which by reason of a supply of the raw materials or of favorable soil or climate we are able to produce to advantage.

No protective tariff has ever been designed to prevent all imports of the protected article, nor has it had that result. As a matter of fact, the duty on imports has been the largest and most reliable source of the national revenues. The reduction of those duties by the Democratic tariff is the cause of the deficit now being made good by emergency taxes.

For the moment the war is having, with respect to some industries, the effect of a protective tariff. It is improbable, as to most industries, that this will continue even during the war, if it is prolonged.

So far as this affects well established industries, the war doubtless gives temporary assistance. It will not cause the establishment of new industries requiring large capital because the moment the war ends foreign competition of cheaper goods would extinguish the value of such investments.

Except by the aid of a protective tariff, it is simply impossible for us to maintain the American standard of life. Our labor is no more productive than foreign labor working longer hours for lower wages. To the extent that necessity has compelled us to substitute machinery for hand labor to a greater extent than others, we have doubtless profited in the past, but American machinery, when better than others, is being adopted wherever found necessary in other countries, just as we adopt foreign inventions when necessary—the Diesel engine, for example.

The question is now right up to the American people. The Democratic tariff has not reduced the price of any commodity to consumers and it has thrown hundreds of thousands of American workmen out of employment.

The protective tariff will never be restored by the aid of Progressives. The origin of the Progressive secession dates back to the open or covert attacks on protection by Senator Cummins and others. The Progressives do not say nor can any one guess what kind of a tariff act they would pass if they had the power.

We know what kind of a tariff the Republicans would enact. It would very much resemble the Payne-Aldrich law. Those who favor a protective tariff of that general kind are Republicans. Those who do not favor it are not Republicans.

SIC TRANSIT GLORIA TANGO!

Last winter in a period of rashness and inconceivable folly, we took a few dancing lessons. We learned the tango, the one-step and the hesitation with all the dips, drags, grape-vines and lame ducks thereto appertaining and in such case made and provided. We thought we had Terpsichore lashed to the rudder of a Zepplin. As we glided about the hall or ricocheted from divan to davenport, just missing the piano lamp in our mad flights through some friendly parlor, we used to feel sorry for poor Mr. and Mrs. Castle. Demon of the day, we were. On last night we happened to drop in on some friends, whose Victrola as we entered, was tearing off, "By the Sea, By the Beautiful Sea." We shall forever hate that tune, for it is inextricably intermingled with the wreck of our fondest conceit. We learned last night that we couldn't dance no more than a rabbit. There was a young fellow in that parlor who had brought with him from the city a slew of new steps and motions and gestures and poses delicatessens as the "half and half," the "fox trot," the "silo slip," the "Ford flop," or something like that. Why, we didn't even know the holds any more. Every thing we did was passe or Aimee or Preemysal. We were Major General Duh. Last year, if you didn't hesitate, well, you needn't come around. This year if you hesitate you are lost and no reward—Exchanges.

LUKE McLUKE SAYS

One in a while Mother decides to let Father down easy when he comes home after spending the evening posing in front of members of the Bartenders' Union, and she will make up her mind to forget that she has either eyes or ears. But after Father gets home Mother gets mad because she can't forget that she has a nose.

You might imagine that a homely girl would be grateful to a man for marrying her. But after she gets you she will roast you just as much as if she was the prettiest thing in town when you snared her.

A woman will send flowers to a man who has murdered his wife. But she believes that any man who is the father of twelve children is too ornery to live.

A woman can come home in a cab and nobody thinks anything of it. But if her husband does it everybody knows that he is soured.

The trouble with the man who is always talking about his own achievements is that he isn't talking about ours.

You never realize how dangerous a thing a little learning is until you hear some girls trying to play the piano.

Another pretty safe bet is that you will not get into much trouble if you let the other man do all the talking.

SQUIRREL WHIPS GAMECOCK.

(New York Sun.)

General Villa, a bantam gamecock in the Central Park menagerie, was vanquished by a gray squirrel in a stubborn fight that took place yesterday, when the bushy-tail raided the enclosure of the bantam family for edibles.

The squirrel was hungry, as donations of peanuts in the park are now infrequent, and he went into the bantam's enclosure for some of the legumes thrown in by visitors. The head of the family joined battle with the intruder.

The rooster tried to use his long, sharp spurs, but couldn't land on his lively opponent. When the biped would jump up in the air bushy-tail would run in and give him a nip in the body. The rooster became exhausted after a while and the squirrel got a stangle hold on his neck and would have finished him if a visitor hadn't called Head Keeper Billy Snyder, who entered the enclosure and stopped the fight.

ALL MAKE MISTAKES.

Newspapers are run by mortals here below and that mistakes occur sometimes is not astonishing. There are typographical and grammatical mistakes made, mistakes in printing that ought to be left out and mistakes of leaving out what ought to be printed.

The merchant sometimes makes mistakes in selecting his goods, the farmer makes mistakes in sowing his crops, all make mistakes sometimes. The newspaper man's mistakes are all down in print and read by a whole list of subscribers, while the other fellows' are not, so that is the reason the editors are charged with making so many mistakes. When it is realized that every letter that appears in print has separate attention and that news gathering and printing is necessarily done in a rush, the wonder is that more mistakes do not appear in print.

THE LAST SLEEP.

(Job III, 11-19.)

Why did I not, for now should I have lain still and been quiet, I should have slept; then had I been at rest, with kings and counselors of the earth, which built desolate places for themselves; and with princes that had gold, who filled their houses with ivory. There the wicked cease from troubling; and there the weary be at rest. There the prisoners rest together; they hear not the voice of the oppressor. The small and the great are there; and the servant is free from his master.

A CURIOUS PREDICAMENT.

In the January Woman's Home Companion Fannie Heaslip Lea, writing a fiction story entitled "Sicily Ann and the Pot of Gold," has a character, a married woman, who comments as follows on the money she had when she was a girl and the money she does not have now:

"When I was a girl I never needed to be careful of what I spent, and since I've been a woman I've never had enough to learn how to be careful."

NOW, WILL YOU LOOSEN UP?

We know two or three men in this town who have gazed at a small amount of money since the time when Heins had only one pickle, and we have made arrangements with a local doctor to administer the "twilight sleep treatment," so they can part with the money that belongs to us without so much mental agony.—Silvian Springs (Ark.) Herald.

TOBACCO

on our opening sale did not sell up to the expectation of a number of sellers, due in a measure to the extremely soft condition of a large percentage of the Tobacco on sale.

In some instances, however, we had expressions of satisfaction, and we confidently believe the difference between the "Growers' Ideas" and the present market will adjust itself as soon as Tobacco begins to appear in good merchantable order. We anticipate a free movement of Tobacco before the holidays and we want your business. We are ready to serve you at all times to the limit of our ability.

Our Own J. Burgess Everett On Theatrical Stage—Member of Famous Triangle Club of Princeton.

The many friends of Mr. J. Burgess Everett of this city will be glad to learn that he has made his debut with the famous Triangle Club of Princeton University, and will appear in its play, "Fie! Fie! Burgess is a Maysville boy and is the oldest son of Councilman J. C. Everett of West Third street. No doubt but a bunch of his Maysville friends will go down and see him "put it on" at Ciney Christmas night.

WHY THEY QUARREL.

James Montgomery Plagge once produced a book of amusing illustrations and underlines called "Why They Quarrel." In each case the middle aged pair were presented and the artist-lunatic told what had appeared to years before for choosing one another. It was most amusing and rather less pathetic and even more amusing. A Chinese couple quarreled and reached the divorce court because the woman wanted to name the baby "Dodo"—the heroine of a popular novel—and the man objected on the ground that the "Dodo" means an extinct and probably mythical bird. The judge was fortunate in persuading the couple to compromise upon "Dorothy."

Upon equally frivolous grounds many marriages have been rendered unhappy and many couples have separated. A young man philandering in the moonlight swears he will live his whole life for the girl, and the girl declares that hers will be a life lived for him. But the two are quite as likely to quarrel over a trifle as to find a serious problem the cause of disagreement.—State Journal.
